My profound view is that any move which separates the Elms estate from its current place in the Wraxall and Failand Parish is to be opposed. This is despite the fact that that our representatives on the North Somerset Council both represent the Green Party which I believe does not now represent the views of any sane elector. Those councillors can be de-selected but moving the Elms estate to a Nailsea ward is just wrong and, in all probability, would not be reversible. Perhaps a more rational move would be to group Wraxall & Failand with the Elms estate into a separate ward divorced from Long Ashton.
