Related subject: The Elms, Wraxall - Boundary Consultation

I am emailing to express my desire that The Elms area should stay within the Wraxall and Failand Parish in the Long Ashton ward. The proposed change would mean one less councillor for Wraxall and Failand and therefore less representation for those living on The Elms and elsewhere in the parish. In addition,the Nailsea Ward is an urban one, whereas Long Ashton Ward is closely aligned to the more rural area of Wraxall and Failand. Combining Wraxall and Failand with Nailsea would also risk losing the protection of the Wraxall and Failand Neighbourhood Plan and the sense of community that exists within the former. In closing, I would like to say that the present boundaries have worked well, so I can see no justification for changing them, particularly when residents of The Elms have overwhelmingly rejected the changes in all previous consultations.
