I am fully against the current proposals to spit our historical town. This will see a reduction in our councillors, many of whom provide invaluable support to our residents. I do not see any benefit in paring old town with Gerrards Cross, nor in splitting Seeleys estate, Sandelswood estate and Knotty Green. I would prefer to see the town unified, taking into account the existing networks and connections of our local small business and community and resident groups. I question the reasoning for such proposals. Why would parts of our town be paired with other areas of Bucks much further away, such as Chesham, Amersham and Gerrards Cross? Chesham is almost 10 miles away from Beaconsfield.
