I am a resident of the Elms and would strongly disagree with the recommendations to be included in the Nailsea boundary. I have strong ties to Wraxall and Failand and feel this parish best reflects me. My neighbours are part of the parish council and I disagree wholeheartedly with your assertion that we have urban characteristics. The parish council do a very good job of reflecting my opinions. My children have attended the Wraxall school and I use the fields between The Elms and Wraxall on a regular basis. You mention clear recognisable boundaries and I believe Lodge Lane provides just the sort of clear recognisable boundary needed. Instead of complicating maters, maybe run the council in a suitable manner and prove you are worth doing rather that endlessly trying to force your will on residents. This is your second or third attempt at changing the boundary and all this while services deteriorate, parks go unsown and council taxes rise. As mentioned, our current elected representatives do a good job in reflecting our wishes and changes are unnecessary.
