I believe the parish boundary relating to the Elms in Wraxall should remain the same without the Elms joining Nailsea. This is to prevent urban sprawl from Nailsea into our semi rural parish and to protect the green area to the north of the elms from urbanisation. Wraxall and failand do not support further housing development in a beautiful area of natural green space enjoyed by families and walkers including a play ground. Nailsea town council are looking to develop this area. The Elms is part of Wraxall not Nailsea and if land to the north of the Elms does eventually undergo housing development it is only right that failand and Wraxall parish benefit from funds paid by developers. If the Elms become part of Nailsea, residents in the Elms will lose their voices in decisions around their future.
