I can understand the logic of having 16 two-councillor wards, to accommodate the two year terms for councillor elections and the ratio to the electorate, but why is it deemed necessary to rename the current wards of Portchester East and Portchester West? I'm proud to live in Portchester and that Portchester has been included in my postal address, having been introduced a few years ago. As far as I'm aware, Portsdown is a general area within Portchester. Portchester Castle is within the Portchester area, but has no living residents, I believe. I don't live in the Portsdown general area and nor do I live in Portchester Castle, therefore, the proposed new ward name of Portsdown & Castle does not, in my humble opinion, correctly reflect where I live. May I therefore suggest that the Portchester ward names remain as Portchester East and Portchester West, since both reflect their respective areas adequately. We don't need changes just for the sake of it.
