I refer to the intended Portchester Boundaries changes in which I reside. I accept that you will make a change, but I believe the proposed boundaries split for Portchester is not the most effective democratic way of doing it. The proposals split the area east/west when the natural split is north/south. The north forms its own community with the schools and two stores serving the residents. Most of the housing on the hill is post 1960s where the southern area is mostly pre-war and has a conservation area by the castle. The southern part has several shops in White Hart Lane and the precinct which serves the area. The intended boundary change with the split east/west with separate both communities. I think a better option would be to have a north/south split with the boundary either running along the railway line or A27. This boundary would be dependant upon the necessary number of electors required. In my view, it would be a more logical and democratic split than the one proposed.
