I don't understand why this is even a necessary. Currently I reside in Hester's Way Ward and generally the area I live in is totally under represented except for idiot councillors wanting to paint double yellow lines to stop employees from GCHQ parking where I live. They fail on every front to address the actual problem. Changing the ward boundaries is not going to improve small things like this and no doubt will make it worse. I live in Cheltenham and much as they can't manage their way out of a paper bag would prefer to stay under the auspices of Cheltenham and not be transferred to Tewkesbury. I don't understand how Tewkesbury already control areas to the south west of Cheltenham? Preparing a consultation in the way that you are gives no voice to the many many people who are not on Facebook or social media of any kind or even have access to a computer or tablet. This is not a fair representation of what the general public think only those that have access to these things. It may be cost effective for you to carry out a consultation in this way but it is not fair or fully representative of the population of the area as a whole.
