I am strongly against this. I just don't understand the thinking behind this. Church Langley, and now Newhall, have struggled for years to get roads and green spaces adopted by the local council. They have worked as a neighbourhood, a community, with their councillor to try to solve these problems which are unique to new areas of this age. Splitting Church Langley into 2 separate wards, or rather absorbing them into 2 separate wards, will really set them back. Maybe that's the reason? Is there a reason for this that has been shared with the public?
