Although you are primarily looking at populations might you also consider the actual boundaries? I would suggest that boundaries wherever possible might reflect the areas defined by Thames Valley Police as their Local Policing Areas (LPAs). You will be aware that Bucks Unitary Authority has decided to have 16 Community Areas. Councillors in these areas look, amongst other data, at crime. However, the existing boundaries are not coterminus with the respective LPAs. This then means that ONS data cannot be drilled down to WARD levels. Frankly it's an nightmare but with your review there might just be the start of resolving these issues.
