Hello

I'm a resident of Buckinghamshire. I just wanted to add my views that the size of the council should definitely be reduced, probably significantly. In my experience from governance boards in both public and charity sectors, smaller forums generally make for more focused discussion and effective decision-making. And we can save some money for services as well. I would urge you to take the opportunity to think radically and aim for a council size of no more than 100.

Thanks for the opportunity to comment
