It would be more sensible to put Lattersey in with another area to allow additional councillors to support the area. The area is both residential but also a high level of industry. Having more than one councillor overseeing the area would allow one councillor to focus on the residential needs and another to focus on the industrial needs. If a councillor oversees the area as proposed then they will need to select one focus as they would be stretched too thin to look at the needs of the whole area. This then would be to the detriment of either the residents or industry. Whilst the A605 is a good point of division it would be logical to add Lattersey, St Andrew's and Stonald together as they have a very similar mix of residential and industry requirements.
