Apley Castle ward has a unique identity, having been formed after a well fought campaign in 2003. The ward's socio-economic, cultural and community make-up is entirely different from that of neighbouring Leegomery. Whereas Apley Castle consists largely of privately owned housing with people from a professional background, Leegomery has a greater proportion of social housing, with people from a more working class background and a greater prevalence of crime and drug problems. The two areas are like chalk and cheese and I have valued being part of Apley Castles unique identity and would ask for that to continue within its own ward.
