I cannot agree with more Councillors being elected, I happen to know how much an election costs and some Councillors do very little for their office! The sad fact is the public should know who to approach before going to their local Councillor, starting with the Citizens Advice Bureau and most residents will not even contact a Councillor, some are lucky to rarely have issues where they live and those who have the occasional issue like me know to approach the Council/Highways first. You would be better served educating the public on services available through community hubs (like Queen Mary and Oasis) and using who we have better, maybe in 2050 there may be a need but not now in my opinion.
