Currently, the area in which I live is within the Sixfields ward but I do not think my area is similar to the facilities and housing now in Sixfields. For instance, Sharman Road in St James is not similar to the newer Upton housing estate and the St James area does not have the same facilities that Sixfields leisure has. I believe the residents in these two area would have different living circumstances and different priorities. However, I do understand my street has a similar flood risk to Sixfields. From being 'on the ground' my area may fit more appropriately with the Dallington Spencer ward since the street opposite is also in this ward area. The St James area also experiences the same issues, has similar housing and is made up of a similar social demographic as the areas included in the Dallington Spencer ward. More drastically, the Castle ward boundary could be extended to encompass St James End/Spencer Bridge Road - Melbourne Road - Abbey Street - Bowden Road - Sharman Road - Lincoln Road, joining back the existing Castle ward at the train station. With how housing has extended out the town centre and existing Castle ward area, I feel the areas are too interconnected socially to be represented separately. The St James area also faces quite a social problems and crimes in the same way the town centre does.
