Horwich and Blackrod are far too big. There are a number of new developments in the area and the amount of residents against councillors seems disproportionate. Blackrod is very poorly represented currently and often overlooked. Also, should the Heaton & Lostock district actually cover Lostock as shown on the map? Rumwork seems to be particularly small by comparison. This map would be more helpful if it shown the number of properties and resident adults within each district to allow for a more informed decision.
