It seems at least 2 of the proposed new wards have 3 councillors who will be covering larger areas with larger electorate. How will they cope with that? Will rural areas like mine (I live in Norton Heath) have councillors who will have the time to care on any proposals in those areas? I am not sure that these new larger wards will work. Can we be assured that the councillors will be able to visit electorate and be available for any problems within these larger suggested wards?
