Comment text:

I have lived in Patcham since I was born, 53 years ago. The reason I stay is that it's a solid supportive community. I am appalled that the council plans to split the whole community in two and effectively eradicate our voice; our chance to make a difference about things that matter to us. We live in a democracy yet I feel that very underhandedly we are having our rights removed. By splitting the community in two our voice will be diluted. We will be muted. Patcham is a whole, established community with schools, churches and shops and dates back to the Doomesday book. How arrogant of the council to even suggest splitting Patcham ward and dividing our community that doesn't want to be divided. Please keep your meddling out of Patcham. It feels like we are a forgotten suburb of Brighton, please don't make us feel like we're hated. We have enough on our plates fighting an unwanted proposed Royal Mail depot which effects the whole of Patcham and is actually a perfect example of why we need to stay as a single, whole ward. Please, please scrap this idea. Patcham is a whole, historic and established community. Don't damage it.
