I have heard the suggestion that Mackie Avenue, where I live, is to become part of the Hollingbury Ward. I think this is a crazy idea and anyone who lives here would agree that Mackie Avenue is very much Patcham based where as the other side of Carden Avenue and maybe even the other side of Ladies Mile Road from us could be classed as Hollingbury. As the crow flies, yes we may be closer to Hollingbury but in our experience that doesn't make us part of Hollingbury. Our daughter went to Carden School for a few years because the school places were allocated unhelpfully as the crow flies and as a mum of a 4 year old and a newborn trying to get from Mackie to Carden by foot was nearly impossible due to the huge hill that is in-between, steps and a narrow twitten. The Ladies Mile Estate was built along the valley to include all of Mackie Avenue and the side roads and very much intended to be part of Patcham. I would like to object to this change and request that if boundaries need changing to split Patcham and Hollingbury that a divide down Carden Avenue would be more suitable.
