I think the suggestion of splitting patcham village into different wards is completely unreasonable. Patcham village has a wonderful community served by 3 councillors but under these proposals the community will be split in two, and each ward will be served by less/different councillors. It means the community as a whole will have different representation making it difficult to raise issues. It is just wholly unnecessary and I believe very few residents will want this. I also must say that the fact there has been no attempt to canvas the opinions of residents is really suspicious. A flyer or a letter to affected residents would have helped ensure the residents this affects have an opportunity to voice concerns.
