Patcham is a very tight knit community. Although there are obvious overlaps with other areas, it seems odd to me to separate Patcham into 2 different wards. Any issue that effects a Patcham resident is likely to have an impact on the rest of Patcham in some way (more so than a resident of Westdene for example). We share the same schools, road networks, shops and facilities etc. to a far greater extent than with other areas that would become the same ward. For this reason splitting Patcham into 2 separate wards seems counter-productive at a time that we need to encourage community. I cannot see how splitting Patcham into separate wards would have any positive benefits to the local community, but I can see many possible negatives. Just seems very odd. As a local resident, I was unaware of this proposed change to the local wards until I saw a post on FB. I would be very surprised if many (if any) of the Patcham community who are aware of this proposal would see any benefit at all.
