Comment text:

Whilst I recognise that the workload on District Councillors has increased significantly since the reduction in numbers only a few years ago I feel that now is not the time to consult on changes. Changes are being considered to the District Council structure through an amalgamation with Warwick District. Changes may emerge with the outcome of the single unitary authority debate. Therefore to carry out this consultation when the future is uncertain is a waste of time, effort and resource. Officers might be more usefully employed in the short term to recommend a short term alteration to working practices to prevent District Councillor overload and burnout
