Killingworth Village ought to be in Killingworth area, it's confusing to put it in Holystone, which is quite different and more new builds type and open fields with huge planning permissions. The Killingworth boundary needs to include the area around the lake, ex council building and the shopping centre too. Otherwise it's just too confusing. and why change from Weetslade to the new name with barely a boundary movement, just keep it as it is, its a bit of history with the name rather than letting it disappear.
