Comment text:

Good morning,

Bradford have 90 Ward Councillors. Every year 30 are up for Election with the fourth year being left with no Election. Why not have only 30 Ward Councillors standing every four years? This will save the council money in running 2 extra elections and councillor allowance payments on 60 councillors. This will lead to other council departmental savings in terms of staffing and other resources. Changing boundaries only leads to elector confusion with change of polling station and possibly ones preferred choice of political party representation. If it's working why change it?

Regards
