I feel the current boundaries are a reasonable reflection of activities within the area however I must add that there seems to be little local involvement since the local forums were disbanded and many decisions seem to be imposed from Canterbury. I don't even know who the ward councillors are, they seem invisible. I suggest current people doing more to engage the local community would be a good step rather than more councillors.

I suspect many people go either to Westward Cross or into Canterbury for shopping other than food. I personally use Whitstable a good deal. Much depends on transport links and the Whitstable to Herne Bay bus service is much less reliable nowadays.

So much construction has occurred in the last few years that some areas will have gained a significant new voting population that should be considered in this process.
