I strongly object to these proposals. The cost of change from Clent Hills to Woodvale will be high, and the resulting change will only affect councillors numbers by some 250ish households. It simply does not make any sense in the current financial climate to make any change to the current arrangement for such an insignificant result. I am concerned that our access to excellent schools in Clent, Belbroughton and Hagley will be affected. I am also concerned that in time, our address and post code will change due to the new boundary. This will affect available services, house prices, home and car insurance and council tax. We live in a semi-rural location, and our current services reflect that. They are sufficient, and run efficiently. Our only local shops and doctors surgery are in Belbroughton village, and whilst we don't live in each other's pockets, there is a strong sense of community within the area. I can not offer you a better solution than the one currently in place...
