Related subject: Proposed new naming of sulgrave Barmston area

I object strongly with the new name for this large area, it does not acknowledge Washington village (the only actual historical area of Washington as all other village names were made up in the 60s and 70s) or Columbia (also an historical area named Brady square and Washington station). Silage and barmston may occupy the larger geographical area but does not reflect the origins of the historical significance of Washington. The village of Washington is a destination and has gained accolades that Sunderland council are more than happy to shout about, this will confuse and demonise its relevance as will it Columbia (Brady square) so I would like to place my objection heartily!
