Related subject: Poynton

Poynton is currently split between two wards, with bits of the rural hamlets and villages added in. Both in terms of population in 2020, and estimated population in 2023, it will be around 12,000 electors, exactly right for 3 councillors. It would make more sense to have one Poynton ward, with 3 councillors representing the town, and combining the bits left from the existing wards with similar rural areas. The town operates very well together, with a strong town council and civic events, and reuniting this community together would help support this civic focus.
