I agree in principle to the concept of creating wards of approximately equal size. There is a huge amount of new development around Thetford.

Your own figures for Breckland as a whole appear to indicate an overall increase in the total population with some wards estimated to have quite big changes. 7 wards have significant increases; 2 have significant decreases. On a simplistic level, that might indicate a need for an additional 5 new councillors. But then, there are some wards (eg in Attelborough which has two wards and 5 councillors) which seems to have a over-representation compared to other areas. Perhaps these should be rethought...
